Overseas Volunteer Projects

Overseas Volunteer Projects for School Leavers – Projects Abroad!
5 Months in Tanzania on a Gap Year

Emma Kelly, an eager pre-university student from Adelaide, wanted to make the most of Tanzania for five months. Emma's aim was to pursue a career in medicine and this volunteer experience gave her the opportunity to observe and assist in local hospitals and clinics and gain a valuable insight into medicine in the developing world. She described her experience as "eye opening" and loved learning about how hospitals can undergo major procedures and operations with basic resources. Emma rotated between various departments and "helped the nurses with their daily duties in the Surgical Ward". When the hospital was busy, Emma was run off her feet "helping the nurses, because there had been 3 surgeries that morning and the patients all require post-op medication and vital signs checked, as well as the daily dressing done." Emma's Gap year in Tanzania solidified for her that she was destined for a career in medicine, "it has made me even more excited to begin medicine next year so I can learn about all of the amazing things I have been lucky enough to see in my time here". Check-out Emma's full story here and if this sounds like something you'd like to get involved in, head to the website to find out more.

Alternative to Schoolies – Teaching in Peru

For those of you who don't want to get involved in the mainstream idea of "schoolies" – our volunteer projects are a great way to explore the world, travel with a purpose and celebrate the end of your schooling!

Our projects allow volunteers to go by themselves, with a group of friends or even with a family member, like Sam Hopkinson did. Sam wanted to do something worthwhile, challenging and different with his holidays. He was looking to pursue a career in Law and Spanish and decided to volunteer with his dad in Peru.

Sam joined the Teacher-Training Project in Cusco, where he prepared interactive lessons for small groups of Peruvian teachers to help improve their English and classroom skills. The project is one of the most challenging we run in Peru however Sam was able to overcome this by ensuring he was prepared for each day, often preparing games and activities the night before.

Whilst Sam and his dad Johnathon volunteered together they had "a completely different experience and that's a good thing", Sam stated. They stayed with a local host family where they were able to fully immerse themselves in the Peruvian culture and spent weekends socialising with the other volunteers and exploring the beautiful Sacred Valley region of Peru, including a trip to Machu Picchu!

You can read Sam and Johnathon's full story in the Peru newsletter here or if you'd like to get involved in a project as an alternative to schoolies jump online to find out more.

Relief Efforts in Nepal

On April 25th a catastrophic 7.9 magnitude earthquake devastated Nepal. With reports of over 4,000 lives lost, we are thankful that all of our volunteers and staff are safe and have been accounted for. We are grateful for their safety, but deeply saddened by the lives lost, damage sustained, and suffering in Nepal.

Projects Abroad has been working in Nepal since 1999 where our local colleagues, volunteers, host families and placement partners make up a Projects Abroad community who we are supporting and working alongside during this tragic time. Right now, volunteers and staff on the ground are working to assess the damage and deal directly with the most crucial needs of the communities we work in which span across Kathmandu, Chitwan and Ghandruk.

While the immediate relief effort is supported by organisations such as the UN, MSF and Red Cross into the longer term there will be a need for much support in the rebuilding effort. To support this, Projects Abroad has established a Nepal Relief Programme which we anticipate will run long into the future. Volunteers, including school leavers, can join from June 1st 2015. Projects Abroad will donate substantially to this programme and any surplus made from fees paid by volunteers will be ploughed back into the Nepal Relief Programme itself.

The project will centre on re-building the homes, community centres and infrastructure of the effected Projects Abroad communities partnered with a medical outreach programme. The aim of the medical outreach will be to provide free health services for those who require urgent care and would otherwise be unable to reach or afford it.

Head to the website for more details, or call – 1300 132 831 or email – info@projects-abroad.com.au to chat with our staff about how to get involved.

Selfies, sexting and bullying: Hints for raising a confident teen in the age of social media

Many young people use chat and image-based forums such as Tumblr, Facebook, Instagram, and Snapchat to connect by sharing photos and ideas. We often hear statements like, "teens are communicating faster and differently now" and "parents just need to get with the times". However, not all 'new' social practices are harmless. Their online presence impacts on a developing teen's sense of self and their understanding of the world. Read more...
