Entrepeneurs of tomorrow travel in style

Students are rarely given an armchair ride into the real world of business, but Matthew Lovegrove and Monique Schroeder of Good Shepherd Lutheran College in Noosaville, have made a good job of.

STUDENTS are rarely given an armchair ride into the real world of business, but Matthew Lovegrove and Monique Schroeder of Good Shepherd Lutheran College in Noosaville, have made a good job of.

free-wheeling it to the corporate table.

The two Year 11 students scored tickets to last week’s red carpet gala 2011 Telstra Business Woman of the Year Awards at the Sofitel Hotel, plus a chauffe-driven stretch limousine ride all the way in the company of their teacher. Matthew and Monique have been chosen as this year’s Tomorrow’s Entrepreneurs Award-winner by Professor Karen Woolley and her husband.

Dr Mark Woolley: Prof Woolley instigated this annual student exposure to positive business role models after she won one of the Telstra awards.

Continued on page 3