STUDENTS at Good Shepherd Lutheran College will strain their brains at the state final of Tournament of the Minds this weekend.

The Noosa college achieved excellent results at the recent regional Tournament of the Minds competition.

All four teams entered qualified for the state competition, to be held at Griffith University, Nathan Campus, on Sunday.

Good Shepherd entered a team in each division – maths and engineering, language and literature, applied technology, and social science.

The four groups of secondary students were required to solve different problems over a six-week period.

Their solutions were presented to a judging panel as a 10-minute play.

Good Shepherd Lutheran College won three of the four divisions, receiving honours in social science.

The four teams will now compete against teams from across Queensland in the hope of securing a place in the national competition to be held in Darwin next month.

ACTING UP: One of Good Shepherd Lutheran College’s Tournament of the Minds teams in action.

Tournament of the Minds

is a competition designed to encourage students to think creatively and solve problems as a team.

Good Shepherd students have an excellent track record of success.

The 2009 maths and engineering team holds the Australian title.

The industrious group of students is seeking sponsorship to assist with the costs associated with the venture and would appreciate any support from the community.
